

Parrot Enrichment Disclaimer

Safety Precaution: If you choose to use power tools, you are responsible for correctly and safely using the tool. As with any power tool, heed the manufacturer's precautions and follow the manufacturer's instructions.

If you are not absolutely sure of your abilities, find someone who is.

Some General Safety Guidelines:

(This is by no means a complete list.)

- Always follow the recommended safe working guidelines and instructions of any tool you are using.
- If a product includes instructions, follow the manufacturer's safety recommendations.
- Wear safety glasses when operating any power tool.
- Wear safety glasses when striking any object with a hammer or other striking tool.
- Do not wear loose clothing around moving machinery or power tools.
- Make sure all ladders and scaffolding are placed securely and on a firm, stable surface.
- Work at a calm and reasonable pace. Many accidents are the result of taking short-cuts or attempting to work too fast.
-

It is recommended you wear hearing protection when using most loud power tools. If you hear ringing in your ears after using a loud tool or machine, that is a sign that the noise is loud enough to possibly cause hearing loss.

These instructions are not in any way to be taken as a guide in the proper use of any tools. When you are using any tool you should familiarize yourself with the Complete Owner's Manual and Safety Recommendations and follow them as close as possible. Never use a tool you do not feel comfortable with. Always have your work area clean and clear of all trip hazards. Always wear safety glasses. Always wear a dust mask when cutting. Use a dust collector whenever possible. Keep your work surface at a comfortable height for you to work. Do not wear loose clothing when using power tools. If you follow all of the Occupational Health and Safety Rules you should be able to complete your project in safety

In no way will the publishers of this web site be held liable for any injuries or damages, direct or consequential, incurred by any person who attempts to follow the examples shown herein.